CZAR TO DEPEND UPON SOLDIERS' GUNS

Thousands Are Arrested And The Douma Removes Secretly To Viborg In Finland--Manifesto is Issued But Not Made Public As Yet.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

St. Petersburg, July 23.—The government's midnight coup d'etat is already having its effect of uniting all the discordant elements of the opposition. It requires little perspicacity to see an era of repression and all which it entails which will drive the liberty and revolutionary alike to support the most desperate measures. It is already clear that resistance will be made. A fear is expressed that the military will surround and arrest the members of parliament who have fled to Viborg in Finland.

Minor Rioting

Although minor rioting continued in the outskirts throughout the night, the day superficially quiet this morning and ominous forebodings of a coming storm is apparent on every hand.

Toured the City

A correspondent of the Associated Press made a tour of the city early this morning and at every block he encountered reinforced patrols and saw excited groups on the corners. He met a half dozen squads of Gendarmes with drawn swords escorting little bands of arrested persons to prison.

Thousands Arrested

During the night over a thousand arrests of workmen, agitators and revolutionary suspects were made. The railroads leading out of the city have been placed under martial law. With the regular garrison there now are more than six thousand troops massed in the city.

Issue a Call

Viborg, July 23.—During the night the committee of seven members of the Russian parliament prepared a manifesto to the country, but its contents are now being kept a secret.

Cheer the Douma

London, July 23.—British Premier Campbell-Bannerman at today's meeting of the inter-parliamentary union in a sudden access of enthusiasm shouted: "La douma est morte, vive la douma" ("Russian parliament is dead, long live Russian parliament"). There were five hundred delegates present, the American representation being headed by Congressman Bartholdt. William J. Bryan occupied a seat on the platform. Amidst the scene of excitement the Russian delegates withdrew because of the dissolution of the Russian parliament.

The Die Is Cast

The people and the government now stand face to face, and upon the army depends the immediate issue. Even should the government, however, succeed in restraining an outbreak of the people the victory probably will only be temporary and simply confine the steam for the final explosion.

No one doubts the severity of the storm which will rise in the country in response to the emperor's dispersal of the men whom he welcomed two months ago in the winter palace as the "best men in Russia."

But the die is cast. The government has elected to fight, and the capital Sunday bore eloquent testimony of the preparations made to repress the masses by force. The city was packed with soldiers and resembled an armed camp.

Call Additional Troops

During Saturday night additional troops were brought in and disposed according to plans previously adopted. These reinforcements included four infantry regiments of the Chevalier guard, Hussars, mounted grenadiers and a battery of machine guns. The troops occupied railroad stations and the bridges across the rivers and canals, and the patrols of both police and gendarmes were everywhere doubled.

The work of gathering in revolutionary agitators began immediately after the ukase placing St. Petersburg in a state of extraordinary security was promulgated, and hundreds of arrests were made before daylight.

Der Lannitz, prefect of police, and M. Zinovieff, governor of the province, are little short of those of petty dictators. Searches and arrests can be made without process of law; newspapers, forced to suspend publication, and persons deported by administrative order without trial. Public and private meetings are forbidden. Those arrested may, if it is desired, be tried by military court and summarily executed. The only real difference between "extraordinary security" and full martial law is that power is exercised by the so-called civil instead of military authority.

Fear Rising of Peasantry

Although the news of the dissolution of parliament spread like wild fire among the members of the various political organizations the masses here generally are hardly awake to the momentous event. The news traveled fast in the country and the general expectation is that the peasantry, accepting the dispersal of parliament as the final blow to their hopes, will rise en masse.

The proletariat organizations have been preparing for months for just such provocation to declare open war.

It is impossible to describe the consternation with which the constitutional democrats learned the news. Although it had been bruited for three days, the ukase was received by them in blank amazement. Even Saturday night's caucus did not believe the government would dare to take the threatened step, and seriously discussed the attitude to be taken towards Minister of the Interior Stolypin when he appeared in parliament Monday to answer interpellations.

The government undoubtedly calculated on catching the opposition off its guard, but if it expected to strike terror to the hearts of the members of parliament it has failed, signally. Some time ago when dissolution seemed imminent the various groups of the opposition virtually agreed to follow the example of their French compatriots of the states general and meet, if driven out of the Tauride palace, wherever and whenever circumstances dictated until a constitution was firmly established.

May Meet in Finland

After a hurried secret conference Sunday morning it was decided, on account of the possibility of the meeting being broken up and the members arrested, that they go immediately to Finland, and decide upon the future course to be pursued, and small groups left Sunday afternoon and evening by train. Whether word was given them to meet at Viborg or Helsinki is unknown, but it seems probable that Finland in future Russian history will become synonymous with "the Tennis Court" or the French revolution. Even Count Heyden, the leader, and other members of the right are understood to have departed. It is quite improbable, however, that parliament as a body will attempt to formally set up its authority against that of the government.

The evacuation which existed at Peterhof, even to the last moment, is evident from the fact that two drafts of the ukase declaring St. Petersburg in a state of extraordinary security were ready. The stronger one, which proclaimed full martial law, was discarded at the eleventh hour.

Report Denied

New York, July 23.—There is no truth in the rumor that the royal palace has been attacked or is in flames.

Want to Prorogue

St. Petersburg, July 23.—The council minister has recommended the Emperor to issue a ukase proroguing the upper house of parliament.

To Use Force

Viborg, July 23, evening.—The governor of Viborg has just arrived here and announced he has been ordered by the Governor General of Finland to immediately close the meeting of the members of parliament and use military force if necessary to disperse them. The text of the address adopted by the members of parliament is not yet available, but enough is known to warrant the assertion it amounts to an appeal to the nation to seize that liberty which the government has denied them. The address was adopted almost unanimously by the members who adjourned.

PROMINENT GRANGER DIED ON SATURDAY

Marvin Warner, Charter Member of La Prairie Grange, Passed Away at Age of Seventy-six.

Marvin Warner, one of the most prominent grangers of Rock county, died at the home of his nephew, Frank Finch, in the town of La Prairie, Saturday night at half-past ten o'clock. The deceased was born in Scipio, Cayuga county, New York, in 1830. Forty years ago he came to Rock county and took up his residence with his nephew. Since then he has made his home in La Prairie and has always been closely identified with the grange movement. He was a charter member of the La Prairie grange and during the thirty-three years of its existence has been one of its most active members. He served one term as Master and for several years was Chaplain, holding that office at the time of his demise. Mr. Warner leaves to mourn his loss one sister, Mrs. Olive Finch, and two nephews, Frank Finch and Charles Finch. He was never married. The funeral will be held from the home Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock and burial will be in the cemetery at Emerald Grove.

RUSSELL SAGE DIES, AGED NINETY YEARS, ON SUNDAY

The Great American Financier Is Suddenly Stricken At His Home On Long Island.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, July 23.—Russell Sage died suddenly Sunday at his country home, "Cedarcroft," at Lawrence, L. I.

The immediate cause of death was heart failure, resulting from a complication of diseases incident to old age. The veteran financier would have celebrated his ninetieth birthday on August 4 next. Mr. Sage had been in exceptionally good health since his arrival at his summer home, about six months ago.

At noon Sunday he was seized with a sinking spell and collapsed, falling into unconsciousness two hours before his death, which occurred at 4:30 o'clock.

There were present at the end Mrs. Sage, her brother, Col. J. J. Slocum, RUSSELL SAGE.

the Rev. Dr. Robert Leitch, Dr. Theodore S. Janeway of New York, Dr. J. Carl Schmuck, a local physician, and Dr. John P. Mann, for many years Mr. Sage's family physician, who was summoned from New York when the first alarming symptoms were manifest.

Little Effect on Stocks.

It is generally believed that Mr. Sage's vast interests will not be seriously affected by his death. Several times within the last few years rumors have been set afloat of Mr. Sage's death. On one such occasion, in June, 1899, Mr. Sage said: "I suppose somebody wanted to make a little money by affecting stock values; and they hit on this old trick." Asked if stocks had been much affected, he answered: "I understand not. The properties in which I am interested cannot be seriously affected by my death."

History of Russell Sage.

Russell Sage, multimillionaire and nestor of American financiers, was born on August 4, 1816, in Verona, Oneida county, N. Y., where his parents Eliza and Penelope Sage, members of a little company of pioneers from Connecticut had halted while on their westward march in quest of a homestead. At the age of 12 years

Russell began his career as an errand boy in the grocery store of his brother Henry, of Troy. At the age of 22 he established a wholesale grocery of his own in that place.

In 1857 the young merchant had acquired a fortune estimated at almost half a million dollars, a vast amount for those days, and determined to retire from active business life. He had, however, already become interested in railroads, his first transaction of this character being a loan to the La Crosse Railroad company, which led to further transactions resulting in his acquiring large interests in the road now forming the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system, of which he became vice president. His determined Mr. Sage to devote his future energies to operating in Wall street and in 1863 he opened his first office in New York.

Originated Puts and Calls.

About this time he formed an association with Jay Gould which continued for many years. About 1872 Mr. Sage originated the system of trading in "puts" and "calls" and "straddles" in which he continued to deal thereafter on a colossal scale. While he purchased a seat on the New York stock exchange in 1874 it is believed that he never appeared on the floor of the exchange.

Only once, it is said, did Mr. Sage experience a tremendous reverse, which would have crushed most men, but from which he emerged with courage and confidence unshaken. This was on the memorable day in 1884 when the great failure of Grant & Ward was announced, resulting in the loss to Mr. Sage of about $6,000,000 on a long line of "puts."

His operations necessitated the possession of a vast amount of ready capital and Mr. Sage always kept his resources so well in hand that in any emergency he was able to command almost unlimited funds.

Mr. Sage was married twice, first in 1841 to Miss Maya Winne, daughter of Moses I. Winne, of Troy. His wife died in New York city in 1867, and two years later he married Margaret Olivia, daughter of Joseph Stocum, of Syracuse, N. Y.

CHANGE SCARCELY FELT SAGE'S DEATH

Dissolution of Russian Douma Considered Prime Factor in Condition of Stock Market.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, July 23.—The death of Russell Sage is probably less a factor in today's stock market conditions, which opened heavy, than the dissolution of the Russian douma. Persons conversant with the affairs of Sage said he had a comparatively small amount of money out on loans and that his death would hardly disturb local financial conditions.

CONFERENCE FOR WHOLE AMERICA

NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN CONTINENTS ARE MUCH INTERESTED.

NATIONAL QUESTIONS UP

Matters Of Importance To Be Discussed At The Meeting At Rio Janeiro, Brazil.

The Third International American Conference, which was called to order in the Brazilian Capitol at Rio Janeiro today, is one of a great trilogy of American family gatherings during the close of the past, and the beginning of the present century destined, in the opinion of publicists, to have a most important bearing on the future of the nations of the Western Hemisphere. Conceived in the mind of the late Secretary Blaine, the idea of bringing into close relations the different governments of North, Central and South America had not only a sentimental and political, but also a businesslike side that at once attracted the attention of Europe. For up to the early 90's, owing in large part to difficulties of communication; to lack of cables to the mutual absence of knowledge of the resources of the two continents of the Western Hemisphere, the commerce between North and South America had been insignificant in volume and the commercial nations of Europe were monopolizing the trade of Latin America.

So to meet this condition and to effect an exchange of natural and manufactured commodities to the mutual benefit of the countries of North, Central and South America after many months of negotiation necessary to allay the jealousies of the lesser states, in October, 1889, representatives of all the republics of the three Americas gathered in Washington and after a brief tour of the principal industrial cities of the country were called to order by Secretary Blaine to consider measures for the common weal. Many important subjects were discussed during that conference, in fact it has been thought that the program was too pretentious, but substantial results were achieved. The survey for the intercontinental railway, now making rapid strides toward completion, was inaugurated. Provision was made for securing uniformity of customs regulations so far as the different business methods of the various countries would admit. The Bureau of American Republics was created and is now doing useful work. An advance was made toward general reciprocity, though the project has even yet failed to reach fruition. A monetary commission was had with sensible benefit to the currency relations of the American Republics. The metric system moved ahead, another step being authorized in the customs service of the United States and other countries. These were all valuable achievements, but there was more to be done and the Conference recommended that the work be carried forward by another congress.

This second conference was held in the City of Mexico, in 1901-02, while many of its recommendations have not yet been generally carried into effect, this second gathering also was productive of good. What was accomplished was this: the approval of Guatemala, Salvador and Honduras of all the twenty-three instruments signed at the Hague; the approval of the United States of the convention for the exchange of publications; the treaty on pecuniary claims and the scheme for the reorganization of the Bureau of American Republics; the approval by several of the South and Central American nations of some of the most important of the treaties proposed by the original conference; subsequent congress which adopted regulations for the improvement of customs relations; sanitation of American port cities and the regulation of the coffee grower industry. But this conference also left behind it unfinished work, hence the gathering at Rio today. The city of Mexico conference felt that the ten-year period proposed by the original conference for the holding of such family gatherings was too long and proposed a five-year period.

So the Rio Conference opens under the most promising auspices with the purpose of considering a program fully equal in importance to that which was laid before any of the preceding gatherings. Injected into this program after it had been practically completed at a preliminary meeting of an international committee held in Washington last winter, was one little article—IV—that is perhaps likely to give rise to more controversy and excite more feeling and be generally of greater importance than any other article. This concerns the interesting Dravid Doctrine, itself an outgrowth of Dr. Calvo's famous dictum, involving the right of a nation to use force in the collection from other nations of public debts. In the program this takes the form of the proposition to allow the Hague Conference to determine this important question and as many of the South American debtor nations are bitterly opposed to allowing the creditor nations of Europe to pass upon this vital doctrine, a bitter discussion is expected when the subject comes before the third conference.

Reorganization of the Bureau of American Republics so as to greatly enlarge the usefulness of that institution is the very first article of the program. It is proposed to erect a

CHICAGO CRACKS WERE SHUT OUT

EAGLES BESTED "THE WARRENS" SCORE OF THREE AND NAUGHT.

HITS BUNCHED IN SIXTH

And Three Runs Were Brought In—Jones Pitched Great Game And Support Was Excellent.

In the fastest game of the season the Janesville Eagles shut out the much-touted "Warrens" of Chicago at Eagle park yesterday afternoon. Bunching their hits in the sixth inning, the locals brought in three runs, the only scores of the entire game. Jones pitched a beautiful game and his support was nearly flawless. The grandstand was well filled and it is estimated the crowd was the largest yet gathered. Enthusiasm ran high and heavy hitters on the home team were cheered to their best efforts, while each exceptionally good play received wild applause. Two decisions of Umpire Bradley failed to please the spectators but a more fair or better official would be hard to find.

Visitors Twice Threatened Runs. The first three innings of the game were without features. In the first two the Eagles were retired in one, two three order and in the third Hutchinson, who reached first on an error, and stole second, was caught for the third "out" while endeavoring to sneak to the third base. In the fourth inning it looked as if Chicago would score. Cigrang reached the initial base on Connor's error

The "Chi" Catcher Got Sore Early, and Donchy singled after Hood had fanned and Devine popped out. Each went one more base while Snyder was at bat and passed over the home plate as Snyder missed reaching first by only a hair's breadth. It was the third out and the runs did not count. The locals scored in the sixth. Carle was first up and nailed out a pretty hit. Riley followed on the bases by the left fielder's error and the next three, Connors, Ward and Wendt singled, sending Carle, Riley and Connors home. Ward was caught at third, Wendt at home as Casey passed a small one and Hutchinson failed to hit. In the ninth inning there was again danger of the "Warrens" scoring. After two fly-out Donchy singled and Snyder walked. Both stole bases but their desperate efforts to shove in one run were without avail. Moutaw fanning.

magnificent building in Washington for its accommodation, to open a commercial museum in connection therewith and a suggestion based largely upon Latin-American suspicion, to limit the life of the bureau to a ten-year period. Some of the nations have failed to supply their pro rata assessments for the maintenance of the bureau with regularity—this is to be corrected.

A strong effort is to be made to bring about unanimous action of the American Republics to agree to settle by arbitration all future disputes arising between them, and to endeavor to have the approaching Hague Conference apply this principle generally to the nations of the world. The United States and several other American Republics were signatories to a treaty providing for the arbitration of pecuniary claims alone. This was an outgrowth of the Mexican Conference and conference is well so the Rio de Janeiro Conference and conference is to be asked to extend its operations another five-year period. An almost impossible task is to be set for a committee of jurists of high repute who are charged with the duty of drafting a code of public international law and private international law for this is by no means an exact science at the present moment and the greatest variance exists between the different schools of international law. Still it is hoped that if the complete code cannot be secured at least agreement may be had upon some useful principles of international law.

The Conference is to endeavor to limit the period it is suggested to two years—within which a naturalized citizen may remain in the country of his nativity without forfeiting his naturalization. Latin-American has always been jealous of these returned citizens and they have given the United States much trouble, so that the subject is even now being considered by a special board meeting at the State Department in Washington. Development of commercial intercourse between the American Republics engaged the attention of the first and second conferences and was left as a legacy to this meeting. It will endeavor to increase rapid communication by additional cable and telegraph line and fast mail lines, new commercial treaties are to be proposed and commercial and industrial statistics are to be freely exchanged. Another effort is to be made to bring into uniformity the customs and consular laws relative to the entry and clearances of shipments of merchandise, an effort is to be made to secure uniform patent and trade mark and copyright laws and the Pan-American project is to be pushed forward. Present regulations and laws make it impossible in many instances for physicians, lawyers and dentists to practice their professions outside of their native country and some uniformity of practice in this respect will be sought. Finally, consideration will be given to the sanitary convention signed and referendum in Washington a few years ago, a subject of growing importance in view of the necessity of protecting the projected Panama canal from yellow fever carried on shipping from the tropical regions of Central and South America.

It has been arranged that this third conference shall be held in the building originally erected by the Brazilian government at the St. Louis exposition, which was removed and re-erected in the Brazilian capital. The congress will be called to order by the Brazilian secretary of foreign affairs—the temporary president. Organization will be effected by the election by a majority vote of a permanent president and necessary subordinate officers, the government of Brazil reserving the right to name the secretary-general. The delegations representing the various republics will draw lots to determine the order in which one of their number may serve as vice-president in the absence of the president. Committees will be appointed in the case of those dealing with the subjects of most vital importance on the program, these committees will include one member from each delegation while in subjects of lesser importance, seven members will suffice to make a committee.

Only by a two-thirds vote can any new subject be brought before the conference, the nations were very jealous of this limitation, the United States no less than others, having a strong indisposition for the discussion of customs tariffs and such subjects. With only six weeks' life before it, for it is especially provided in the program that the conference must terminate not later than September 1st next, it is also limited to thirty meetings and it is probable that not even this number will be held, because the delegations must have time to deliberate privately over projects that are of especial interest to them. The list of delegates to the conference is as follows:

Costa Rica—Don Ascension Esquivel—former president.
Uruguay—Dr. Juan Zorrilla San Martin, Professor Gonzales Ramirez, Raulo T. Dominguez.
Brazil—Senator Joaquin Marinho, Senator Gastao Cunha, Dr. Joaquin Nabuco.
Peru—Antonio Miro Quesada, Mariano H. Cornejo, Eugenio Larraibar Umanoe.
Honduras—General Sotero Barahona, Fausto Davila.
Salvador—Dr. Manuel Delgado and Dr. Francisco A. Reyes, R. Mayorga Rivas, 1st secretary, and Dr. Enrique Boria, 2d secretary.
Ecuador—Emilio Arevalo, minister to Rio, and Lieutenant Colonel Alfaro, son of President Alfaro.
Mexico—Francisco de la Barra, minister to Belgium, Ricardo Garcia Gradados, a member of congress, Ricardo Molina Hubbe, a lawyer.
Argentina—Rogelio Saenz Pena.
Chile—Don Joaquin Walker Martinez, minister to the United States; Emilio Bello Codicido and Dr. Anselmo Hevia Riquelme, present Chilean minister to Brazil, Marcial Martinez, secretary.

Paraguay—Dr. Decour, a member of the first Pan-American congress, is one of the delegation.

Cuba—Don Gualdo de Quesada, minister to the United States, will head the Cuban party.

Panama—Don Jose Domingo de Obaldia, minister to the United States.

Nicaragua—Don Luis F. Correa, minister to the United States.

Guatemala—Don Torge Munoz, minister to the United States, designated to represent Guatemala at Brazil.

Colombia—Miguel Antonio Caro, former president of Colombia; Joaquin Veloz and General Rafael Uribe, minister to Brazil.

United States—Wm. L. Buchanan, of Buffalo, chairman; Tulo Larrinaga, commissioner from Porto Rico to the United States congress, Professor L. S. Rowe of the University of Pennsylvania; Van Leer Polk of Tennessee; Professor Paul S. Reinsch, University of Wisconsin; Andrew J. Montague, former governor of Virginia; Charles R. Dean, secretary.

BOLT STRIKES GRANDSTAND

Five Persons Killed Outright and Man to be Killed Game, and a Score or More Injured by Shock.

Manitowoc, Wis., July 23.—Just before a ball game between a local team and a Plymouth, Wis., nine, a fierce electrical storm swept over the city Sunday afternoon and a bolt of lightning hit the grandstand, where the spectators and players had sought shelter.

Five persons were killed outright and a score or two injured by the shock. The dead: Albert Skuhra, 28 years; Walter Handl, 18 years; Irvine Woeller, 20 years; Anton Karke, 14 years; William Kauffman, 16 years. Most seriously injured: Harvey Kono, 10 years, "limb" paralyzed; Frank Boehm, 17 years, splinter of wood forced into breast; Walter Boehm, 12 years, shocked; unconscious; Theodore Burmeister, 14 years, crippled, paralyzed, may die.

When the storm came up and it began to rain all sought shelter in the grandstand. The bolt struck the roof and descended among the crowd, and of the 450 there half of them were stunned. Two were found dead in the stand and the other three just outside on the field. The work of rescue proceeded during a terrific storm, scores of women hurrying to the grounds in search of their sons who were at the game.

Free Fight on Barge

New York, July 23.—A prize fight with bare knuckles between "Amby" McGarry of this city and Willie Hoesey of Albany, lightweights, was held on a barge in the north river Sunday. A decision in the fourth round giving the fight to McGarry because of an alleged foul result in a free fight.

...FORTY YEARS AGO...

Janesville Daily Gazette Monday, July 22, 1866.—Nine horses killed by lightning in Brodhead A. House Struck.—During the shower of last evening which prevailed at Brodhead, nine horses, which were on an open prairie together, were killed, and were found lying in a heap after the storm was over. The theory is that the animals being frightened by the glare of the lightning and the reverberations of thunder huddled together, and one shaft of lightning killed them all.
Two of the horses, we understand, belonged to Capt. Moore, two to James Moore, two to a Mr. Cortleyou, but who owned the remainder we did not learn.

The dwelling place of Dr. Bradley was also struck during the same shower. The fire passed down the lightning rod to a point where the installations was incomplete, where it look to the house tearing off some clapboards but doing no other damage.

Ravages of the Army Worm.—A gentleman who resides in the town of Harmony informs us that the late sown oats in that section of the country are being entirely ruined by the army worm. They have also infested the barley fields and are eating the heads off from the grain but do not seem to be injuring the berry at all.
Some farmers are cutting the oats thus attacked to save them. Our informant states that he sowed in one place and counted five hundred of these destructive pests. We understand no danger is anticipated to the wheat crop from these destructive animals.

July 23, 1892.—Fourteen years ago today H. C. Frick of the Carnegie Steel Company was shot by the Anarchist Berkman.

TAKING OFF TARNISH

Especially about the den—where brasses and other cherished antiques abound—the use of Lavaline is appreciated.

There's no polish so bright, no finish so high, no ornamentation so peculiar in its character, that Lavaline will not get to the spot and save hours of weary, heart-breaking work. And the best of it all is that the result is right.

Have you noticed after you'd cleaned up your brasses with one of the so-called "cleaners"—and you were pleased with the glossy shine you secured—and you wanted to show it to someone about an hour afterward—and there was a dark, cloudy tarnish all over it—worse than the tarnish you cleaned off? That was the oxalic acid, the so-called cleaner contained. It simply ate the tarnish off because it took some of the brass too! Oxalic acid has a great affinity for copper and copper is one of

of the main ingredients of brass.
Lavaline, the greatest cleaner

of the age, will clean a greater surface, in less time, than any other "cleaner" will do. Less work will be required and there will be no bad after-effects. Lavaline is beneficial to the hands.

When you buy a can of Lavaline and you think for any reason—that it does not do all we claim for it, take it to your dealer and he will give you back your 10 cents.

PIKE'S PEAK JUBILEE PLANS.

Hundredth Anniversary Celebration to Be Military and Civic.

Colorado Springs, Colo., is making elaborate plans to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the discovery of Pike's peak, says a special dispatch to the Chicago Post. The government will send 10,000 regular troops to take part in the programme in addition to representatives of the various tribes of Indians with whom Pike came into contact on his toilsome march of discovery. Congress probably will authorize the issue of 100,000 souvenir medallions in commemoration of the event.

The programme will last one week, beginning Sept. 24. The celebration will be military and civic. To include a sham battle, and maneuvers by the troops and the unveiling of a huge granite monument to Pike. Besides the troops, the Indians, the national guard, the cadets and the veterans, cowboys, pioneers, patriotic societies, fraternal societies, educational institutions, historical societies, school children and citizens generally will take part.

There will be parades, tournaments of polo and golf, automobile endurance races, drills, war dances by Indians, cowboy sports and exercises of all kinds typical of the "wild west."

All things are difficult be- fore, they are easy," such as, "getting the swing of it" in ad- vertising a store.

The old story about a messenger boys never running is good enough to repeat because its true.

So La Follette has come out strong for Lenroot. Well, Lenroot, needed some one to help him.

Well Governor Davidson knows where his former running mate La Follette now stands at any rate.

The man who originated the name "Mary Ann League" has given the paragraphs a good title to call the Irving Lenroot slate.

Thus far, Mr. Connor, is alone in the field in his aspirations to become Lt. Governor on the Davidson ticket or any other republican slate.

The Racine Journal comments very pleasantly on Mr. Nolan's candidacy for congress and hands him out bouquet after bouquet.

This week the Janesville Chautauque begins its second season. Such an institution is a good thing for a city and should be encouraged by the towns people.

The blue Danube would look pretty dirty if the waters of Rock river were turned into it. What might be a beautiful stream is polluted with refuse as it runs through the city.

Is a trust a thing to be feared worse than a small pox or is it some thing that may benefit a community? These are questions that perplex many sections of the country in this day of the "muck rake."

Reports do say that during the last session of the legislature certain members used to raise their hands if they wanted to leave their seats during a session, to ask permission. Do you believe that?

Tobacco and sugar beet men are experiencing a taste of what sort of legislation might come if they return a man to congress who has no interests in his constituents beyond being in office.

Congressman Cooper may explain his Philippine Tariff vote to suit himself and a few others but the mass of the tobacco and sugar beet growers need something more than empty words, wall maps or beautiful books sent out at the expense of the government to make them think he is worthy of another term.

THE SERVICE OF NEWS.

What is the deeper meaning of all this daily array of events with which the press serves the reader? It is not simply that of turning up the hour glass of one day's events, so that they may run down only to be reversed for the next day. No, the meaning of the stream of events lies deeper than this, so far as the press is concerned. An event has no real interest by itself; its value consists in its connection with the causes or conditions that forced it into notice, and in the consequences which flow from it. It is the business of the press to catch these events, define them, classify them, and give them their meaning, so that the reader may correlate them to his own interests and act or think accordingly.

It is this that gives the press the power which evil doers fear, and honest men encourage. In proportion as this work of disclosing the truth of events is rightly done, to that extent will the newspaper grow in power. And to that extent is the newspaper doing just what scientific research is doing—discovering and interpreting the truth, and putting it at the service of human improvement.

LENROOT'S CHANCES.

Senator La Follette has come out in a strong endorsement of Irving Lenroot, of the Mary Ann League fame, as the republican candidate for Governor. Just how much this endorsement will mean to Mr. Lenroot is hard to estimate at the present time. It is certain that the action of the Senator in stating he will support Lenroot by word of mouth on the stump will increase his present dwindling vote. It was not thought that the Senator would really make a speaking campaign and something may come yet to hinder it. In his Milwaukee address, he makes bid for the radicals of radicals by slurs at the conservatives who have supported Davidson thus far in his campaign. Republicanism as indicated by his speech is La Folletteism, any one who differs with him and his ideas is not a republican. This sentiment is doubtless pleasing to the seventy thousand odd republicans of the state, many of whom voted the republican ticket when La Follette was spouting "The Boy Stood On The Burning Deck" before admiring school house audiences on "Last Day." It will take more than a mere announcement to drive true and tried republicans from the party they have so long supported. Factionalism has practically died out and the republican party is nearly united again after years of strife when the mere announcement of factional lines being drawn again brings up all the old rancor once more. If Davidson is nominated it will be by the conservative republicans of the state not the radicals and fair minded democrats.

THE LESSON OF DREYFUS.

Given a reasonable time and there is reasonable faculty in the French people which always works a situation out to its logical end. Every body is naturally distressed for the sufferings of Captain Dreyfus, or for the matter of that, for any suffering conspicuous or not. There is a dramatic quality about the story of Devil's Island which appeals where something more commonplace and equally indefensible does not. All that is best in humanity is nourished by unmerited suffering. It is a guarantee for the persistence of the moral type.

There is a curious analogy in the methods of nature. She is prodigal of the individual, but conservative of the type. At close range, the suffering she inflicts is absolutely meaningless. The scheme grows larger as we stand away from it, until the insignificance of the individual becomes apparent. The sufferings of Dreyfus are nothing. The moral regeneration of a nation is everything. We have lynched and pilloried our own Dreyfuses, and paid for the folly in sackcloth and ashes. It is astonishing what growth a nation makes in these moments when it is humbled by a conviction of offending.

The case has become history, but it leaves a scar which will take long to efface. And yet all suffering has its reward, not for the sufferer, but for the unworthy for whom he is the conscious or unconscious sacrifice. With the settlement of the Dreyfus case disappears an army ring which held itself independent of, and greater than, the sovereign people of France. A better democracy arises, and a truer conception of a people's rights and responsibilities. The tears, sown in the hot sands of Devil's Island have fertilized the soil for a seed which was in some danger of extinction.

PRESS COMMENT.

Probably The Latter. Milwaukee Journal: Somebody has found a deposit of hellum in Chicago. Or is it hellum?

Characteristic Barnacle Viewpoint. Exchange: Tom Platt disappears of young men going into politics. Quite a number of barnacles take that view of it.

Launching Of The Pin-Wheel. Duluth News-Tribune: Mrs. O. H. Belmont, of New York, will give a party pretty soon to introduce her boy, Harold Vanderbilt, into society. O, pickles!

Prune Juice and Pepper. Houston Post: The moonshiners are gentlemen and scholars compared with the men responsible for the adulterated hot stuff that forms the whiskey of commerce today.

"So Long, Mary." Chicago News: "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway" is going away. Now that the phonographs have learned to sing "So Long, Mary," perhaps it couldn't see the use of sticking around.

Wanted Her To Look Higher. Exchange: David Belasco's idea that Mrs. Carter would not marry an actor because "she would look higher" ought to make a great hit with Mr. Belasco's friends in the theatrical profession.

Gold In Midget State. El Paso Herald: New gold discoveries are frequently announced in Nevada. The midget-state in population is actively digging gold and irrigating and new prospects have opened before it.

Who Can It Be? Chicago Record-Herald: Andrew Carnegie thinks many people now living will see England, the United States and Canada merged under one government. He doesn't mention the name of his candidate for president of the united countries.

Prefers More Limited Area. Madison Democrat: Ex-Governor Hoar would be an excellent man in congress, but he may be right in his preference for a job at doing chores about his great dairy barn at Fort Atkinson rather than as "chore boy" for a district in the house of representatives.

Bob's "Mash" On Teddy. Milwaukee Journal: They say La Follette made a real "mash" on Roosevelt and the other fellows say Roosevelt simply can't endure him, and says so. For the real facts read the two morning organs and then you'll know nothing about it.

Would Make Dietz Governor. Exchange: Dietz seems to be the right man for governor. He never quits his platform and if he is going to run Wisconsin it would be much better to make him a duly authorized governor. His present attitude has a tendency to bring the governor's office into contempt.

Enthusiasm Is On The Wane.

Philadelphia Press: The enthusiasm for William J. Bryan as the next democratic candidate for president has dropped about 20 per cent since his declaration that he is more radical than ever. On the other hand, the enthusiasm among the populists and free silver cranks has risen about 200 per cent.

Shut Up, Commoner!

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A Democratic paper at Norfolk, Va., says that "If Mr. Bryan's Commoner doesn't shut up about free silver and the platform of '90, folks will get the idea that the whole graveyard of dead issues is to be galvanized into a simulation of life to frighten the Democratic children in 1908." A ghost dance for two years is viewed with alarm by the long-headed members of the party.

It's A Mean Job.

El Paso Herald: The insurrection in Brazil is of more than momentary interest, for a disruption of the big republic might give Germany a show for her old plan of setting up one of the states principally colonized by Germany as an independent nation under her protection, open or tacit. And while of course we mean to have the Monroe doctrine survive and prosper, we do mortally hate the job of sitting up nights with it.

Knew It By "Rute".

Rockford Register-Gazette: They had a home coming up in Broadhead, Wis., the other day and the village poetess turned out a score of verses on "The Village Choir" as her contribution to the general entertainment of the home-comingers. The following are some excerpts: "Years passed and Mrs. Tenny left, And Nettie Smith did play, She's Mrs. Eng's Persons, now, And plays for us today, And Anna Sherman I recall, And also Nettie Foster, And Hattie Korman, God Bless the girl She knew the rhyme by Rute."

Don't Experiment; Stay In Rut.

Evening Wisconsin: So-called "toolstands" are responsible for the death of two boys in a Lakewood, New Jersey, family whose head no longer is all from the same cause. It was supposed to be an expert in setting mushrooms, because of twenty-five years' experience. "Skill in the matter of differentiating mushrooms sometimes takes the expert onto dangerous ground, because there are so many atypical fungi. The only safe course is to stick to a few of the familiar varieties when collecting for the table, and leave the others for students to differentiate and classify."

A Double Prophecy.

New York World: Said the New York Sun on Saturday: "The Sun craves permission to present its humble service to the supreme powers at Oyster Bay, to Messrs. Platt and De- puy, to the new and austere hierarchy of Odell and associates, to one Frank Wayland Higgins, the putative governor of the state of New York, and to all sober minded and self-respecting republicans to whose confidence it can appeal, and with all deference submit: 'The next governor of the state of New York will be a democrat.' 'The next governor of the state of New York will be the next president of the United States.' 'In the opinion of the World this interesting prophecy errs in two important particulars. No democrat will be elected governor of New York this year. The next president of the United States will not be a democrat.'

Free Advice To John D. Chicago News: Tom Lawson, says the oil trust magnates are going to turn their securities into cash and depart. That would be a great and clever move on their part if it were not for the unfortunate circumstance that the air line to Mars is not yet in working order and they cannot go to any quarter of the world where the people will not begin at once to try to get away from them what money they have. America is not the only country that is striving to protect itself from its millionaires. They might try New Zealand, for instance, where the parliament sits up nights to devise ways and means to separate the surplus wealth from the rich and spread it abroad where it will do the most good. Mr. Rockefeller and his associates pay thousands of dollars each year for advice, but we will give them a line of it free. It is for them to stay at home and obey the laws and be happy."

"Rowdysm" Of Women! Milwaukee Sentinel: Violence breeds violence. It is curious enough that such a movement as an agitation for female suffrage should be accompanied by acts of violence, one might say hoodlumism, on the part of the demonstrating "ladies" themselves.

But such appears to have been occasionally the course of the obstreperous wing of the English "suffragettes," as they are jeocularly called. They have disturbed and tried to break up meetings, hooted and pelted speakers, battered with every symptom of ferocious intent at ministerial doors, and on several occasions have their ringleaders been marched, screaming and recalcitrant, to station houses by polite but muscular and resolute "bobbies."

Such have been the scandals and frequency of such shindies that the reproachful Spectator recently declared that whatever chance of success there may have been for the cause of the "suffragettes" had vanished altogether "because of the folly and rowdysm of a few women."

Important Victory For Union Labor. The Grose Leader-Press: The decision of federal Judge J. V. Quarles, allowing picketing as a great victory for the labor unions. True, other judges have held that there can be so such thing as peaceful picketing, but the Milwaukee jurist thinks otherwise. He maintains that members of a labor union, having the right to strike, are also entitled to persuade others to strike if they can do so without threats or show of violence. It is still an open question whether an attempt on the part of two or more men to induce others to abandon their work, for the sake of doing injury to an employer by depriving him of his force, does or does not constitute conspiracy, some courts holding strongly that such attempt to get other men away from work is an offense, but Judge Quarles is clearly on the union side of the question. He is careful to insist, however, that his decision carries with it no right to use other than peaceful means to induce ormen to quit. The right to strike is part of the prerogative of free labor, which also requires that a workman may contract for his services where and with whom he pleases. No intelligent person, of course, tries to justify the use of force to compel workmen to leave work when they are satisfied to remain.

BEAR HEARING ENDED TODAY

CHARLES EUNSON AND OFFICER ON THE STAND.

VERDICT FRIDAY EVENING

Evidence Relating to Number of Blows Struck and Attendant Circumstances Varied Greatly.

Before the five and police commission, investigating the circumstances attendant upon the arrest of Charles Eunson by Officer Robert Bear on the night of June 15, the last of the witnesses were examined today. Attorney Fred Burpee, representing the patrolman, made a brief address and adjournment was taken until Friday evening when the commission will pass upon the evidence.

Eunson on the Stand.

Cap. Collier, who was in conversation with Eunson at the time he was arrested, testified to the effect that Officer Bear struck the man and knocked him down on the sidewalk on River street. He didn't believe Eunson was intoxicated. He said that Eunson had an umbrella under his arm, but that he did not see him try to use it for a weapon. Richard Kay said that Eunson "Had a little talking jag," but that he did not believe he was drunk. He testified that Eunson and W. W. Woodring had been having a little altercation and that Eunson said something of such an improper nature that it would not bear repetition in the hearing of Mrs. Woodring. Thereafter, Eunson was called to the stand. According to his story he had been working for J. A. Farmer and Mr. Woodring tried to garnish his wages. He said that he spoke him quietly to Woodring but called him a "four dog" whereupon the latter called up the police station. He swore that he had not had a single drink on the day in question; that Bear struck him five times; to his knowledge once upon River street, once in the alley, and three times on Milwaukee street; that he choked him and batted his head on the car rail. Part of the time between these alleged attacks, he claimed he was unconscious. He claimed that Bear had arrested him without cause on one occasion and admitted that he had called up the sheriff and told him that he would defend himself against that sort of thing in the future if he had to use a revolver or knife.

Officer Bear Testifies. Officer John Brown testified that Eunson had been drinking and that he was perfectly conscious when he reached the station. Officer Robert Bear testified that both Collier and Eunson were intoxicated at the time he made the arrest; that Eunson declared he would not go to the lock-up and squared around to hit him with the umbrella when he first struck him; that the blow did not stun the man or make any wound; that he only struck the man once on Milwaukee street; that he took him by the throat to force him to relinquish his hold on the club, but did not pound his head on pavement or rail; that Eunson had made his threat to do him early this spring and that upon arresting him on a subsequent occasion he found an open knife in his outside coat pocket; that he had merely told him to go home and had not arrested him on the night when Eunson claimed he was "unfairly used."

Attorney Fred Burpee in his closing argument said that it had been shown that Eunson was violating the law in three ways: he was drunk, he was using abusive language, and he was resisting an officer. Because an officer must be the aggressor and must press forward and fulfill his mission, he is not limited to self-defense. He cited law to show that when an officer used excess force he could only be punished by a court for the excess beyond the force reasonably necessary.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT SPECIALS FOR TODAY

The aches and pains of Rheumatism are only symptoms which may be scattered or relieved with liniments, plasters, blisters, etc., or quieted with opiates. As soon as the treatment is left off, however, or there is any exposure to dampness, or an attack of indigestion, the nagging pains, sore muscles and tender places on the flesh return, and the sufferer finds that he has merely checked the symptoms, while the real cause remains in the system. The cause of Rheumatism is a too acid condition of the blood, brought on by indigestion, chronic constipation, weak Kidneys, and a general sluggish condition of the system. Waste matter collects in the system each day which nature intends shall be carried off, but when it is left because of a sluggish condition of the system it sours and forms uric and other acids. These are taken up by the blood and carried to all parts of the body to produce the pains and aches of Rheumatism. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism by going down into the blood and driving out the cause and making this life-stream rich, pure and healthy. When the blood has been purified and built up by S. S. S. the pains and aches pass away, the muscles become soft and elastic, and Rheumatism driven from the system. Book on Rheumatism and medical advice free.

Can we longer afford to overlook the fact that we can secure the very best of dental service at about half the rates we have been paying? Dr. Richards, of Janesville, the independent dentist, says he would be delighted to have his work (put out at a modest price) compared with work done by others at possibly double his prices. He affirms that the comparison will establish the fact that his work is good in every respect. His work is lasting. His work is done thoroughly. His work is substantial, and, in fact, not excelled by that of any other local dentist.

In addition to the reasonableness of his prices he gives close attention to his work. Now see what you get by having him do your dental work.

RESERVE ONE DAY FOR OBSERVANCE

OF THE LORD'S WORSHIP AND KEEP IT HOLY.

SERMON OF REV. BOISSIER

Deals With The Subject Of Preserving The Teachings Of The Bible Regarding Worship.

Rev. H. C. Boissier in his yesterday morning's sermon at the Trinity Church spoke on "The Observance of the Lord's Day," and he chose as his text the tenth verse of Chapter I in the book of Revelations: "It was in the Spirit of the Lord's Day." He said in part: With the yearly recurrence of the summer months, with the arrival of the vacation season, with the advent of the heated term, there seems to be a tendency, a temptation in the minds of many Christian people to forget, or at least temporarily overlook, the duties and obligations and even some of the principles which underlie the fact of the Lord's day observance.

And so we are ready to more clearly consider the first of the main proposition of our subject, our duty in consecration at least one-seventh of our time to the special service of God. And this principle is common to both Jewish, Sabbath and Christian Lord's Day. Remember that you keep one holy day in seven. The Christian Church has set apart the first day of the week for that special purpose and common consent and custom has accepted the decision. Keep the day holy, therefore. But this implies the separation of the thing consecrated from all others, and a communication to it of a quality of holiness. Yet some object to this, by saying that all of the Christian's time should be consecrated to the service of God and this is true. However, the obligation of love is not ignored when the obligation of duty is insisted upon. For, if so, special times and occasions of prayer have to be eliminated, because we are told to pray without ceasing. The life of the Christian is and must be remembered penetrated with prayer. And yet we know that both public and private times of stated prayer are most necessary if we are in any sense consistently maintain the prayer. Similarly, it is necessary and logical especially one day in seven, if we would properly and fully maintain our spiritual equilibrium, or realize to any extent how to consecrate all our time to God's glory.

But the sad part of this matter is that Christians themselves observe the Lord's day in such half-hearted unsatisfactory ways. As we study the history of Christian worship there is no fact that comes out more plainly than this: that the Lord's day Sacrament of His Body and Blood on His own day has ever been the center and chief service of Christian worship, around which has clustered emblem, music, liturgical prayers, oft many kinds and forms, together with ritual as the outward manifestation of the tremendous truths involved. It has followed all down the ages and today is to be read of all men, that those persons, congregations, or national churches who have most closely followed the Lord's own example and His Apostles' undaunted teaching and practice, have departed farthest from the great fundamental principles of the Catholic Church and creed. He who was known to His personal disciples in the breaking of the Eucharistic Bread may be known and found today of "those who seek Him early in the morning" as He promised, and to those who today assemble "on the first day of the week to break the holy bread," to them the truths of the Gospel will be preached, as by St. Paul of old. But today, in every large part, much of our Lord's day Christian worship has been modeled after other plans than that good old apostolic one found in Acts 20:7, where it says that "on the first day of the week when his disciples came together to break the eucharistic bread, Paul preached unto them," for in a vast number of cases the breaking of the bread (which you must know is another name for Holy Communion) has been almost or entirely eliminated, ever as a mere symbol of Christian worship and people, having itching ears have desired other spiritual foods, than that which their Lord especially gave them. But besides the great sacrament, and its service, as the chief one of the day, special effort and provision must be made on the Lord's day, wherein everyone may learn more perfectly than before, some truth or aspect of truth, some Christian duty as brought by the example or words of Christ. Without some positive effort of this kind a Sunday is and will be a lost Sunday. For there seems to be an insidious and mistaken notion in the minds of many Christian people, that the obligations and duties of the Lord's day only rests upon them as often as they choose to recognize them. And thus this leads to all kinds of irregularities and weak excuses for neglecting duties they would otherwise perform. It is not the glaring inconsistency in the lives of us Christians in regard to our keeping of the Lord's day, that is responsible for some of the greatest abuses and deceptions which we notice regarding it? It does not cover the whole ground, nor is it by any means fair to make a scapegoat of the other fellow. He may have his faults, but what are ours? How do we stand? Have we set our own household in order about this question?

And this leads us to our second leading principle: the periodic suspension of human toil. And this is closely connected with the consecration of our time to God. In order to make this day unlike other days and to make room for the acknowledgment of God in its ordinary occupations should be suspended. And this observance is carried out very generally throughout the world, at least

JANESVILLE MEN GIVE AN OPTION

PALMER, BOSTWICK, LEWIS AND PARKER MAY SELL MINE.

MICHIGAN MEN WANT BAXTER

Wonderful Property Is Liable to Be Sold for an Enormous Fortune Shortly.

It was announced today that the famous Baxter mine near Cuba City, owned by W. F. Palmer, George S. Parker, J. M. Bostwick and S. B. Lewis of this city, might be sold to Marville Jenks and John H. Quinn, two practical mining men from the copper and iron regions of Ishpeming, Michigan, for a sum that exceeds six hundred thousand dollars. In speaking of the proposed deal the Ishpeming Record of July 21 states that the mine will be capitalized at a million dollars and that it will pay ten per cent on an investment of three millions.

Have investigated, and by the Baxter mine was developed the four Janesville men and gentlemen owned entirely by them. Mr. Palmer, speaking of the mine, we have heard said this afternoon, "I have given an option to the Ishpeming men mentioned for some time, but have not been able to get it. The Baxter mine has not been carefully examined by an expert, but my report the option men agreed. The new owners intend to stock the mine for a million dollars and it is expected that the banks of the northern Michigan cities adjacent to Ishpeming will have blocks of stock to dispose of. I expect the deal will be closed sometime in August."

The Baxter was examined by Benjamin P. Chynoweth of Houghton, Mich., and George A. Newell of Ishpeming, ex-state mineral inspector of Michigan. Mr. Chynoweth's report shows the Baxter to be one of the richest mines in the western part of the state, clearing over nine thousand dollars for its owners during the month of June above expenses. He makes an estimate that the mine can be made to pay thirty thousand dollars a month. He also states in Cuba City mining district is as yet in its infancy and that a great future is in store for mines in this locality.

Mr. Fred Schetter was a guest at the Harris home in Evansville yesterday.

William Hough went Sunday morning to Milwaukee, where his wife and two children are visiting relatives and friends.

Officer Fred Benke, Took Charge and Sent Him Home.

Telling a story of town Junction boy of eight, who was kidnapped and locked in a car until released here, Clarence, picked up near the depot, by Officer Fred Benke late denials, by afternoon. The boy was Saturday and wore only a shirt and barefooted, and was very much frightened. He said he was in the car with him and no seeming set for his seizure could be gained from a rigid cross-examination. The patrolman decided it was a case of runaway and took steps to return the child to his home. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ebert of Watertown Junction, acquaintances of Mr. Benke. The boy was taken home Saturday night by Baggageman William Charlton, brother-in-law of Mr. Benke.

EXPLOIT OF THE LAKE

Submarine Boat Traveled Over Three Hundred Miles Alone.

NOT ANY MISHAP ON THE CRUISER

Engines Stopped Only Twice on Trip From Norfolk to Atlantic Highlands. Once For the Crew to Watch Whales—New Craft Can Detach Her Lead Keel.

After persons ashore had begun to think hard about the Lake, a little submarine, cruiser, and wonder whether she had succumbed to the severities of the trip up from Norfolk, the striped mast or flagpole of the diver was seen by an observer, the other day, about noon and soon afterward the latest production in submarines anchored off the steamship dock at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., says the New York Herald. She was built by the Lake Torpedo Boat company, and as she lay practically flush with the water she attracted general attention.

Orders were for the Lake to stop at Atlantic City, and it was her failure to do so on account of bad weather that caused fears for her safety. She made the run from Norfolk, a distance of 325 miles, at a speed of more than seven knots. It is the longest continuous sea trip ever made by a submarine. She is driven by a gasoline engine of 250 horsepower and has auxiliaries for electric lights and other purposes of 180 additional horsepower. All the food eaten on board is cooked by electricity and the interior is brilliantly lighted.

During the long voyage up the coast the Lake was unaccompanied by any vessel and ventured into the open sea entirely alone. Captain G. M. Evans reported that although comparatively heavy weather was encountered, the run was accomplished without the slightest mishap, and said it undoubtedly marked the beginning of an advanced era in submarines.

On board the Lake is a crew of eight men all told, who find plenty of room for their simple wants within the steel pod, which is built to withstand the pressure of the sea at a depth of 130 feet. Even when steaming on the surface her decks are submerged by the wash, so that the navigator handles the craft from the top of the conning tower, but when she settles beneath the surface and begins the duties for which she was constructed her steers from within the tower, whence, although several feet beneath the surface, he is enabled to sweep the horizon by means of a periscope or microscope, which projects somewhat beyond the water and reflects below what is going on above.

Electricity is the auxiliary motive power of the Lake, but the batteries are used only when she is submerged. She can carry sufficient gasoline to last her on a much longer voyage than the one she has just completed. She is equipped with three torpedo tubes and has storage capacity for five torpedoes. In the bow is a diving chamber whence a diver can issue forth into the sea when the boat is beneath the surface, and this will be a valuable adjunct in war time in cable cutting and the laying of mines.

When diving the Lake does not descend on an inclined plane, but sinks vertically, being thus possessed of the power with which the imaginative Jules Verne equipped the Nautilus. She can be submerged in a wonderfully short space of time in spite of her size, for with a length of eighty-five feet she is the largest submarine ever built in this country.

By an ingenious arrangement the lead keel of the Lake can be detached at any time. Should the vessel fail to rise to the surface for any reason, a turn of a wrench will let the five tons of lead on the keel fall off and thus give to the vessel five tons more buoyancy.

She left Newport News at a quarter past 2 o'clock in the afternoon of June 23, and stopped off Cape Henry to signal Mr. Lake. She got under way again, that evening, at half past 7 o'clock and did not stop her engines again during the passage except on Wednesday morning, June 27, when off Barnegat, when she shut down for a short time to watch the antics of some other submarines in the form of a school of whales.

Flowers in Place of Greets.

One more fad has seized upon girls who have so much pocket money they can afford to spend it on stray fancies, says a correspondent of the New York Press. The new idea is to select a favorite flower and use it in lieu of a crest on stationery and other personal belongings. Miss Mathilde Townsend has selected the violet, and to her chums she indicates notes on highly perfumed paper of violet tint with a few petals of the flower on its surface. Miss Harriet Wadsworth is partial to moss roses, and these are seen on her special note paper. Fancies, heart-ese, heliotrope, all figure in this new fashion. The fad should be encouraged as a step away from the all too prevalent snobbishness and toward democracy, for it certainly is more American to have a simple flower for a crest than to copy the family bearings of some lackey or thief who was enabled by some complaisant king centuries ago.

Missouri's Banana City.

Madden Plan.

Noted Running Horse Is Now to Race Trotters.

John E. Madden, whose name has been one to conjure with on the running turf for the last five years, has decided to go back to his first love—the light harness horse—and to head his stud, has selected the stallion Prince Selma, 2:10 1/4, a son of Bow Bells.

Madden hails from Bethlehem, Pa., and from boyhood to his present age, a shade over forty, he has been fond of good horses of all sorts. His first experience as an owner and breeder was with the trotters, about two decades ago. His early trot star was Class Leader, a gray gelding that could trot around 2:20. Madden liked Class Leader and was impressed with the fact that his dam was the old-time race mare Tackey, that had also produced the trotters Pilot Boy, 2:20; Njord Queen, 2:20 1/4, and the stallion Pilot Medium, that was then beginning to shine as a wonderful sire of speed.

Madden decided that Pilot Junior blood was the thing, but there was no chance to act on the conclusion just then, writes Henry Ten Brock White. He went on buying trotters and making them, possibly the best of his string being Sulston, 2:15 1/4. She was, by Elector and cost a lot of money; also she raced badly at times, but Madden finally sold her and got out even. Splash and Turner did the training and driving for Madden, and from those oracles Madden, who had been an athlete in his youth, with a clip on his shoulder to run 100 yards against any amateur, began storing up ideas on how to produce horses for high-class racing.

About that time there was a lot of excitement among breeders over the Pilot Junior blood in the female line—the thing that had set Madden thinking when Class Leader was in his stable. Waterwitch, a daughter of Pilot Junior, was just then undisputed queen of blood mares. Bred to the imported thoroughbred stallion Bonnie Scotland, she produced the trotter Scotland, 2:22 1/4, that could go two miles. Then she was sent to the trotter Mambrino Pilot, and her colt, by him, Mambrino Gift, was the first stallion to trot in 2:30. Bred to Belmont, she produced Viking, which beat 2:20 with little training, and Waterloo, his brother, took a mark of 2:19 1/4. A third member of the family, Warlock, also trotted into "the list," and as in the meantime the daughters of Waterwitch were producing speed and one of them, Myrtle, took a record of 2:20 1/4 breeders simply were jumping for the blood.

At this time Madden, hardly more than a boy in years, learned that one of the sons of Waterwitch, a stallion called Warlock, brother to Viking, Warlock and Waterloo, had been sold several years before to an English breeder. Guarded highly resulted in the whereabouts of the horse being ascertained, and on the next steamer Madden started to buy the expatriated trotter, the trip being the first of the kind on record. Reaching England, he found that the American trotter was being advertised as a horse that sired colts of the best hackney type—in a district where there were plenty of pure bred hackney stallions. But Warlock's colts were getting business for him. Following the hackney fashion, Warlock's tail had been docked, and he came back to America looking little like a trotting bred nag. Madden sold him at a fine profit right away and then began paying attention to the running horse game.

He saw there was money in it for a smart horseman with some capital, and in the quadruple capacity of owner, breeder, buyer and seller, he made a wonderful success. Ballyhoo, Bey, Yankee, Plaudit and other colts that he got ready to race were sold at fabulous prices to eastern millionaires.

TO ROOT OUT ANARCHY

Island Prison Suggested For 'Reds' of the World.

SCHEME OF DR. WALTER KEMPSTER

International Movement Toward Banishment and Seclusion Proposed. Aims at a Commission to Share Expenses All Countries to Share Expense of Guarding the Assembled

United and to take action to provide all governments anarchy and to should be taken as of their attacks of the recent bomb thrower. Madrid is the belief of Dr. Walter Kempster, a Milwaukee, who thinks the proper of some practical plan to root out anarchy in the United States and European countries is one of the urgent needs of the present time, and a special dispatch from Milwaukee to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Dr. Kempster, who has given much thought to the subject, and he has a plan which he believes would prove entirely practicable and effective.

According to this plan, the secretary of state of the United States should immediately demand the appointment of a commissioner to meet with commissioners to be appointed by other nations, such as England, France and Germany. The co-operation of all nations whose safety is threatened by the presence of anarchists should be asked, and at a meeting of the international commission steps should be taken for the purchase of an island to which all anarchists from all nations should be banished. This island, Dr. Kempster believes, should be located in a healthy, pleasant location, with conditions favorable to the support of human life. An international guard should be maintained to see that the anarchists thus banished do not escape, do not send out any of their anarchistic ideas to the outside world and do not receive help from the outside.

The plan is substantially the same as the one which the Wisconsin commandery of the Loyal Legion, at the suggestion of Dr. Kempster, recommended for adoption at the time of President McKinley's assassination. Although, nothing was said publicly about the plan, it was submitted to other commanderies of the Loyal Legion, and almost without exception they endorsed it and sent petitions to congress asking that the necessary action for the calling of such an international commission be taken. The plan was submitted to Senator Spooner and is said to have received his approval.

"This fiendish outbreak in Madrid ought to be taken by people the world over as a call to action," says Dr. Kempster. "When President McKinley was assassinated resolutions by the hundreds were passed. Every one passed resolutions against the anarchists, and feeling was at fever heat. Within two weeks after his death the whole thing was forgotten. At that time I suggested the plan of having an international island to which anarchists should be banished; to our Loyal Legion. Other members agreed with me that the plan was entirely feasible and would prove a practical solution of the problem confronting us. We sent the plan to other commanderies, and a large number of them joined us in sending a petition to congress, submitting the plan and asking action on it. Previously I had submitted the plan to Senator Spooner, and he had given it his endorsement."

All these petitions were shelved. The feeling aroused against the anarchists died out in a few days, but anarchy has been going on growing bolder and bolder. A few days ago we were shocked at the bomb throwing in Spain, and immediately following it two of the leading anarchists in this country came into Milwaukee and preached their dangerous doctrines absolutely undisturbed. The anarchists are allowed to go on plotting murder-for-anarchists are murderers per se—while we stand silently by.

"We have reasonable evidence that there is an anarchistic plot against President Roosevelt. We know there was one against President McKinley, who was shot down by a disciple of this same Emma Goldman who comes to Milwaukee openly and boldly, yet we take no steps to check the growing danger."

"When the police cleaned out that hotbed of anarchy in New Jersey, what was done? The members of the band were scattered and sent out to spread their dangerous doctrine in other parts of the country. Some of them came to Wisconsin, and some went to other states. Unless something is done to check the growth of anarchy we shall see a return to such law. It would not have taken much to have incensed citizens with the lynching of the assassin of President McKinley, and the assassination of some practical plan, then, is necessary. Unfortunately we do not have for anarchy. There can be no possible objection, however, to putting them all on an island together, and let them work out their own salvation or destruction. I am convinced that the plan is a practical one. All it needs is some one to give it the start."

Americanizing of England. Twenty years ago the English hated everything that was American. We now think altogether differently. As reports London Truth, The American woman is the pattern upon which our women are being remodeled; the American man has wholly altered our character and that of our business. British institutions are being reconstructed in accordance with those of the United States.

LOST A SURE THING BET.

Enthusiasm for Good Roads Cost Kansas Mule Buyer Quite a Pleasant Sum.

Drury Field, of Richards, is a mule buyer and an enthusiast on good roads. He was in Kansas on a mule-buying trip, when he stopped at a small town west of Fort Scott. A veterinary was preparing a bill for application for a horse with a sprained leg when Mr. Field approached the veterinary stable. A kettle with the water heating in it stood near and men were gathered about discussing how hot the water should be when applied to the horse's leg. They asked Drury Field's opinion. "But," said the doctor, "the horse never could stand having his foot put in a bucket of boiling water; it would cook the flesh from the bone." "Not at all," said Drury. "I have held my foot in boiling water for five minutes, many a time and can do it again." "I'll bet you $50 you can't do it," said the doctor, with thoughts of easy money drifting through his brain. "I'll take the bet," said Drury, with a merry glint in his eye, "get 'er to boil!" The mule driver has an artificial foot which he intended to put in the hot water when it should be ready. Meanwhile, the subject of good roads came up, and the tub of boiling water was ready. A mule buyer, excited by his argument, assent-mindedly put the wrong foot in the liquid, according to the statement of the Richards Progress, and thereby lost what looked like a bet on a lead pipe pinch.—Kansas City Times.

WAS NOT TO BE BUFFED.

Triumphant Argument of Feathers Man That Won Wager He Had Made.

A man who was noted for his fearlessness once made a bet that he would at midnight enter a certain vault reputed to be haunted, and, as a proof of his having been there, he agreed to bring away a human skull from a heap of human bones lying there.

On the night in question three of his comrades had already concealed themselves there, thinking to baffle him in carrying out his purpose. However, just on the stroke of midnight, he descended the vault steps, unlocked the door, and with the aid of a lantern groped his way to the heap of bones, and picked up a skull, when a gruff voice said:

"That's my head!" He laid it down and picked up another, when the same voice again said: "That's my head!" "Nonsense, man! You are a blooming idiot. You never had two heads!" came the unexpected reply as he strode off in triumph with his prize.—N. Y. Weekly.

To Clean Piano Keys.

One of the best-known agents for cleaning and restoring the color of piano keys is alcohol. Dampen a soft cloth with the alcohol and wipe off the keys, rubbing with the grain. Dry with a soft linen or flannel cloth. If piano keys are exposed to the sunlight occasionally they will keep their color much better.

Rural Simplicity.

The author of "Reminiscences of a Country Politician" asked a laborer in an English village about 30 years ago, how old he was. "I be just the same age as the green," he said. "It be either a fortnight older or a fortnight younger. I don't rightly know which. And I don't suppose he knows, either." Youth's Companion.

No Gush in These Letters.

In the 300 letters from Mrs. Jordan, the actress, to the duke of Clarence, after William IV. of England, her morganatic husband, which letters were sold at Lashby's, London, there were no terms of endearment. The letters all begin abruptly after the date line and end "Yours sincerely, Q. J."

CHAPTER XI.

"SAY, Clarence," blurted out, "there's going to be a strike!" Oakley glanced up from his writing. "What's that you are telling me, Clarence?" "There's going to be a strike, Mr. Oakley," said Dan, smiling good-naturedly at the boy. "I guess that has blown over, Clarence," he said kindly. "No, it ain't. The men had a meeting last night. It was in the room over Jack Britt's saloon. I've just been talking with a fellow who was there. He told me—" "Sit down," said Oakley, pushing a chair toward him. "Now, what is it?" as soon as he was seated. And Clarence, telling his reminiscences as he saw fit, gave a tolerably truthful account of his conversation with Spide. The source of his information, its general incompleteness and the frequent divergences occasioned by the boy's attempt to incorporate into the narrative a satisfactory reason for his own presence at the yards, did not detract from its value in Oakley's estimation. The mere fact that the men had held a meeting was itself significant. Such a thing was new to Antioch, as yet unvisited by labor troubles.

"What is that you say about my father?" "For he had rather lost track of the story and caught at the sudden mention of his father's name." "Spide says they got it in for him. I can't just remember what he did say. It was something or other Giff Ryder knows about him. It's funny, but it's clean gone out of my head, Mr. Oakley." "Oakley started. What could Ryder know about his father? What could any one know?" He was not left long in doubt. The next morning shortly after he arrived at the office he heard the heavy shuffling of many feet on the narrow platform outside his door, and a deputation from the carpenter shop led by Joe Stokes and Brannon entered the room. For a moment or so the men stood in abashed silence about the door and then moved over to his desk.

"Oakley pushed back his chair and as they approached came slowly to his feet. There was a hint of anger in his eyes. The whole proceeding smacked of insolence. The men were in their shirt sleeves and trousers and had on their hats. Stokes put up his hand and took off his hat. The others accepted this as a signal and one after another removed theirs. Then followed a momentary shuffling as they bunched closer. Several who looked as if they would just as soon be somewhere else breathed deep and hard. The office force—Kerr, Holt and Miss Walton—suspended their various tasks and stood up so as not to miss anything that was said or done.

"Stokes took a step forward and cleared his throat as if to speak. Then he looked at his comrades, who looked back their encouragement at him. "We want a word with you, Mr. Oakley," said he.

"What have you to say?" "Well, sir, we got a grievance," began Stokes weakly, but Brannon pushed him to one side hastily and took his place. He was a stockily built Irish American, with plenty of nerve and a loose tongue. The men nudged each other. They knew Mike would have his say.

"It's just this, Mr. Oakley. There's a man in the carpenter shop who's got to get out. We won't work with him no longer."

"That's right," muttered one or two of the men under their breath.

"Whom do you mean?" asked Oakley, and his tone was tense and strenuous, for he knew. There was an awkward silence. Brannon fingered his hat nervously. At last he said doggedly:

"The man who's got to go is your father."

"Why?" asked Oakley, smiling his voice. He guessed what was coming next, but the question seemed dragged from him. He had to ask it.

"We got nothing against you, Mr. Oakley, but we won't work in the same shop with a convicted criminal."

"That's right," muttered the chorus of men again.

"Oakley's face flushed scarlet. Then every scrap of color left it.

"Get out of here!" he ordered hotly.

"Don't we get our answer?" demanded Brannon.

"While the interview was in progress McClintock had entered and now stood at the opposite end of the room, an attentive listener.

"No!" cried Oakley hoarsely. "I'll put whom I please to work in the shops. Leave the room, all of you!"

The men retreated before his fury, their self confidence rather dashed by it. One by one they backed sheepishly out of the door. Brannon being the last to leave. As he quitted the room he called to Dan:

"We'll give you until tomorrow to think it over. But the old man's got to go."

McClintock promptly followed Brannon, and Clarence darted after him. He was in time to witness the unloading of the master mechanic's vials of wrath and to hear the hot exchange of words which followed.

"You can count your days with the Hackleberry numbered, Brannon," he said. "I'm hanged if I'll have you under me after this."

"Well, so!" about the time retorted Brannon sarcastically. "Talks clean!"

Oakley turned to Clarence.

"Run into the carpenter shop and see if you can find my father. If he is there ask him to come here to me at once."

The boy was absent only a few moments. Roger Oakley had taken off his work clothes and had gone uptown before the men left the shop. He had not returned.

Dan closed his desk and put on his hat.

"What's the old man ever done to you, you infernal loafer?"

"Shut up, Milt, and keep your shirt on!" said Stokes in what he intended should be conciliatory tones. "We only want our rights."

"Well, have 'em, too!" said Brannon, shaking his head ominously. "We ain't dagoes or Polacks, we're American mechanics, and we know our rights."

"You're a speak, Brannon. What's he ever done to you? You needn't be so particular about the old man's record. You know as much about the inside of a prison as he does."

"You're a liar!" Nevertheless McClintock spoke only the truth. At Brannon's last word he smashed his fist into the middle of the carpenter's sour visage with a heavy, sickening thud. No man called him a liar and got away with it.

"Gee!" gasped the closely attentive but critical Clarence. "What a son-of-a-bitch!" Brannon fell up against the side of the building near which they were standing. Otherwise he would have gone his length upon the ground, and the hands rushed in between the two men.

Stokes and Bentick dragged their friend away by main strength. The affair had gone far enough. They didn't want a fight.

McClintock marched into the office, crossed to the water cooler and filled himself a tumbler; then he turned an untroubled front on Oakley.

"I guess we'd better chuck those fellows—fire 'em out bodily, the impudent asses!" What do you say, Mr. Oakley?"

"But Dan was too demoralized to consider or even reply to this. He was

"I am going to the hotel," he said to Kerr. "If anybody wants to see me, you can tell them I'll be back this afternoon."

"Very well, Mr. Oakley." The treasurer was wondering what would be his superior's action. Would he resign and leave, Antioch or would he try and stick it out?

Dan hurried uptown to the hotel. He found his father in his room, seated before an open window in his shirt sleeves and with his Bible in his lap. He glanced up from the book as his son pushed open the door.

"Well, Dannie?" he said, and his tones were mild, meditative and inquiring.

"I was looking for you, father. They told me you'd come uptown."

"So I did. As soon as I heard there was going to be trouble over my working in the shops I left."

"Did they say anything to you?"

"Not a word, Dannie, but I knew what was coming and decided to quit work."

"You shouldn't have done it, daddy," said Dan, seating himself on the edge of the bed near the old man. "I can't let them say who shall work in the shops and who not. The whole business was trumped up out of revenge for the cut. They want to get even with me for that, you see. If I back down and yield this point there is no telling what they'll ask next—probably that the wages be restored to the old figure."

He spoke quite cheerfully, for he saw his father was cruelly hurt.

"It was all a mistake, Dannie—my coming to you. I mean, Roger Oakley said, shutting the book reverently and laying it to one side. 'The world's a small place after all, and we should have known we couldn't keep our secret. It's right I should bear my own cross, but it's not your sin, and now it presses hardest on you. I'm sorry, Dannie!'"

And his voice shook with the emotion he was striving manfully to hide.

"No, no, father. To have you here has been a great happiness to me."

"Has it, Dannie? Has it really?" with a quick smile. "If an glad you can say so, for it's been a great happiness to me—greater than I deserved."

And he laid a big hand caressingly on his son's.

"We must go ahead, daddy, as if nothing had happened. If we let this hurt us, we'll end by losing all our courage."

"It's been a knockout blow for me, Dannie, with a wistful sadness, and I've got to go away. It's best for you I should. I've gone in one direction and you've gone another. You can't reconcile opposites. I've been thinking of this a good deal. You're young and got your life ahead of you, and you'll do big things before you're done, and people will forget. I can't drag you down just because I happen to be your father and love you. Why, I'm of a different class even, but I can't go on. I'm just as I am, and I can't change myself."

"Why, bless your heart, daddy," cried Dan, "I wouldn't have you changed. You're talking nonsense. I won't let you go away."

"But the girl, Dannie, the girl—the doctor's daughter! You see, I hear a lot of gossip in the shop, and even if you haven't told me I know."

"We may as well count that at an end," said Dan quietly.

"Do you think of leaving here?"

"No. If I began by running, I'd be running all the rest of my life. I shall remain until I've accomplished everything I've set out to do if it takes ten years."

"And what about Miss Emory, Dannie? If you are going to stay, why is that at an end?"

"I dare say she'll marry Mr. Ryder. Anyhow, she won't marry me."

"But I thought you cared for her?"

"I do, daddy."

"Then why do you leave up? You're as good as he is any day."

"I'm not her kind, that's all. It has nothing to do with this. It would have been the same anyhow. I'm not her kind."

Roger Oakley turned this over slowly in his mind. It was most astonishing. He couldn't grasp it.

"Do you mean that she thinks she is better than you are?" he asked curiously.

"Something of that sort, I suppose, dilly. I want you to come back into the shops, father."

"I can't do it, Dannie. I'm sorry if you wish it, but it's impossible. I want to keep out of sight. Back east when they pardoned me, they told me, and I didn't seem to mind, but here it's not the same. I can't face it. It may be cowardly, but I can't."

Bats Have Phosphorescent Skins.

A new species of bats has been discovered in South America that have phosphorescent skins, which burn with a terrifying greenish glare at night. In the daytime they look like ordinary rats.

Time for Natural Rest.

Remember that the most complete and the most natural rest should come at night, when the day's bustle and worry over the tired brain and body is given an opportunity to throw off the strain of work, and for eight hours or so may be freed from nervous tension.

To Relieve Deafness.

Deafness is often caused by collection of hard wax in the ear. Remove the cause by dropping into the ear a few drops of glycerin at night time and syringe in the morning with warm water.

Business Independence Through Advertising

The degree of business independence you enjoy in the sales end of your business is measured by the demand for your goods by the consumer.

WITHOUT a healthy demand from the consumer you must constantly conciliate for very life every salesman, jobber and retailer who handles your wares.

Without consumer demand all of these forces are hammering down your price while running up your selling cost.

Your profits are in danger.

There's only one way to build up consumer demand.

Advertise.

Expensive? Well, newspaper advertising, for instance, is not nearly so expensive as extra trade discounts, concessions in many other forms, excessive salaries to salesmen, commissions out of all proportion to jobbers and profits beyond reason for retailers.

Expensive? Not if you get right down to business—avoid experimental waste.

Experimental waste is what our Record of Results enables us to minimize for advertisers.

The Lord & Thomas Record of Results is a classified, tabulated record of the experience of so MANY and of such a comprehensive VARIETY of proposals, that practically every class of advertised commodity is thoroughly covered.

Through its guidance and proper interpretation YOU can start at a point in advertising which otherwise it would take years of expensive experimental work to reach—because without the guidance of this record you would have to go it blind.

One of our representatives is in your city every few days, looking after the interests of some of our present clients. That is why we are advertising in this newspaper—to you—NOW.

We want to explain to you, in person, what the Lord & Thomas Record of Results means to you in Dollars and Cents. If Lord & Thomas Advertising will increase your business and profits, you need us. If your decision is not in our favor, we will not importune you for an advertising order.

We ask you to write today—granting us an interview in your office. You will in no way obligate yourself by asking us to call.

We are issuing a series of small books (cloth bound) covering advertising in all its phases, which we send free to interested advertisers.

Romance of MSS.

There has been handed to the Edinburgh Advocates' library a most interesting and valuable MS. book recently found in the safe of the New College library. It is entitled "A Perfect Inventor of all the Pious Devotions Given to the Kings and Hosts in Scotland since the Days of James I. to the Reign of King James VI. with Additions, Edinburgh, written 12 Nov. by R. M. C." As the book bore conclusive marks of having belonged to the Advocates' library, inquiry was made to ascertain if any light could be thrown on when and how the MS. book had entered the New College library. The former librarian of the New College reported that he was not able to give any information, and had not in fact been aware that the book was in the library. Probably, therefore, the mystery of its passage from the one library to the other will never be cleared up, but if it could be another chapter would no doubt have to be added to the romance of missing MSS. The MS. is of the highest interest for Scottish history.—Dundee Advertiser.

College Students as "Thinkers"

It is important for college teachers to promote the pursuit of the part of their students of such subjects as in their inherent character demand thinking and also to promote such a pursuit of these subjects as does promote thinking. Mathematics is a subject which demands thinking. It is thinking, it is nothing else. History may be presented as a matter of acquisition, it also may be presented as a matter of weighing evidence as a study of cause and effect. Economics is a subject which specially offers opportunities for such study and develops thinking. Its phenomena are complex and the causes which prevail in its field are often obscure. These studies and similar ones offer a special advantage in creating and nourishing the power of thinking.—North American Review.

Believes in the Newspapers.

"I believe in the newspapers," says Mr. Alexander, the singing evangelist. To illustrate their carrying power, let me tell a story!

A newspaper, published in England, one day carried in its columns a sermon by the late Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon. That newspaper found its way to Australia, and eventually was part of a bundle that was thrown under the counter of a store to wrap up packages with. In course of time it was reached, and inclosed some articles that were sent to the house of a most ungodly man. He unwrapped the goods, and as he did, so the heading of the sermon struck his eye. The man read it, became thoughtful; read it again, it converted him, and he became an earnest and devout Christian.

Unread Service.

All bachelors and spinsters in our parish seem to have come to the conclusion that the Latin poet was right in saying that no life is equal to that of the unmarried for there has been no wedding in our church since last July, and it is 20 years since the marriage service was for so long unread.—Border Churchman.

PEACE IN HARD COAL FIELDS

OPTIMISTIC STATEMENT ISSUED BY OPERATORS.

Labor Situation Satisfactory, Fully 90 Per Cent. of the Men Having Returned to Their Tasks.

New York, July 23.—For the purpose of showing the condition of the anthracite coal fields two months after the close of the recent suspension, the following statement was authorized Sunday on behalf of the anthracite coal operators:

"The labor situation in the anthracite region is today one of profound peace. In all the active collieries mining is progressing satisfactorily. Fully 90 per cent. of the workers who absented themselves as a result of the suspension ordered by President Mitchell on April 1, and discontinued on May 13, by agreement with the operators, have returned or been replaced. The output of anthracite for June was 5,676,013 tons, only slightly below the output for June, 1905.

"The agreement extending the operation of the award of the anthracite strike commission until April 1, 1909, has been accepted in entire good faith. Merchants who furnish household and other supplies to the miners are again carrying full stocks and operators are making plans for extensive improvements to meet the increasing physical difficulties in producing coal.

The board of conciliation has actively renewed its work of adjusting the grievances of the mine workers. During the three years of the board's existence its decisions have been in the main well received by both sides. Through its action the petty strikes of former years have practically ceased to occur. The board has amended its rules so as to reach a speedy determination of all complaints presented, and now sits practically continuously from day to day when ever its calendar requires."

LESS DOING IN INSURANCE

Falling Off in Business Shown by Report of New York State Department.

Albany, N. Y., July 23.—The disastrous effects upon the life insurance business of the sensational disclosures made during the investigation of that business last fall by the special legislative committee is shown in the annual report of the state insurance department on life, casualty, credit and mortgage guarantee insurance, made public by Superintendent Otto Kelsey of that department.

According to the report the companies doing business in this state issued 83,396 fewer policies in 1905 than in 1904, the amount of insurance written last year showing a decrease of $151,724,854. Moreover, 76,934 more policies terminated in 1905 than in 1904, and $98,548,766 more insurance. The New York state companies, says Superintendent Kelsey, "issued 597,379 policies, insuring $966,848,898 and terminated 430,250 policies, insuring $785,982,331. The companies of other states issued 420,335 policies insuring $766,252,013, and terminated 226,909 policies, insuring $410,519,413.

TWENTY KILLED IN WRECK

Collision Between Freight and Passenger Train on the Seaboard Air Line Injures 23.

Charlotte, N. C., July 23.—In one of the worst railroad casualties in the history of this section, about 20 people were killed and more than that number injured as the result of a head-on collision between a through east-bound passenger train and an extra freight near Rockingham, N. C., four miles west of Hamlet, at 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening. Many of the victims are said to be negroes.

The official reports sent to the general offices of the Seaboard line showed that 19 dead and 23 injured had been taken out of the wreck.

The officials of the road attribute the disaster to the failure of the telegraph operator at Rockingham to deliver orders to the passenger train.

Engineer F. B. Lewis of Hamlet, and Fireman Tom Hill of the passenger train, were killed. The negro fireman of the freight also is said to have been killed while the engineer of the freight, saved himself by jumping. Only a few of the bodies extricated from the wreck have been identified.

MANIAC COMMITS MURDER

Patient at Insane Hospital Beats Aged Victim to Death with Heel of His Heavy Shoe.

Racine, Wis., July 23.—With the heel of his heavy shoe, Albert Rierson, 28 years old, a patient at the Racine county insane asylum, beat out the life of John Ladrach, aged 68 years, another patient, Sunday morning. The murder was discovered by Nelson Pashlau, night watchman. Rierson, covered with blood, was accused of the crime, admitted it, gave no excuse, and remarked that he was "D— glad of it." He was immediately placed in restraint and the coroner took charge of the case.

Martial Law Suspended.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—According to a telegram received here order has been restored at Tcheran and martial law suspended.

NOTES OF RUSSIAN CRISIS

It is stated positively that the new parliament elections will be based on universal suffrage.

The French socialist journals indulge in violent attacks on "carism" and in condemnation of repression of the people's will.

The constitutional democrats appear to be downcast over the dissolution of parliament. But the members of the Group of Left and the socialists are in an exceedingly combative mood.

The greatest consternation was created at Moscow by the news of the dissolution of parliament. It is expected this action will precipitate revolutionary outbursts throughout Russia. Its effect on the peasantry is especially dreaded.

News received at St. Petersburg concerning the reception in the provinces of the ukase dissolving parliament shows that there were no disorders, but it probably will be several days before the masses comprehend what has happened.

Two hundred members of Russia's outlaw parliament are gathered at Viborg, awaiting the arrival of Count Heyden, M. Stakovich and other prominent members of the right before opening the session at which will be adopted a manifesto that the people be summoned, and that they stand by the dispersed assembly members.

M. Stolypin, the successor to the premiership, telegraphed to the Paris Matin as follows: "The emperor is firmly and absolutely decided to maintain the regime of national representation accorded by the manifesto of October last, and for that reason has dissolved parliament, whose abstract discussions and attempts at infringement seriously menace the existence of the new regime."

Prince Hilkoff, former Russian minister of railroads, and who is the representative of the council of the empire at the Interparliamentary congress at London, was utterly surprised at the news of the dissolution of parliament. He said, however, that parliament had been a great disappointment to many. Rash pledges had been made and promises given which aroused great hopes, but none of them was kept.

HELENA MAN MURDERS WIFE

Believing His Spouse Unfaithful Bookkeeper Kills Her and Endeavors to End His Life.

Helena, Mont., July 23.—Charles D. Schmidt, an assistant bookkeeper for the Helena Water Works company, Sunday afternoon shot and killed his wife and tried to kill himself.

It is said that Schmidt discovered a letter implicating his wife with a man at Fort Assiniboula.

Schmidt shot his wife in the side with a shotgun, inflicting a wound from which she died almost instantly. Then he turned the weapon upon himself, firing a charge into his left breast.

The doctors say he will recover, although his left arm is practically shot away and he has a serious wound in the breast. Schmidt is about 27 years of age and his wife was 18.

TWO DROWNED IN THE SIOUX

Boat Overturned by Striking Piece of Piling and Men Who Cannot Swim Lose Lives.

Sioux City, Ia., July 23.—The overturning of a boat resulted in the drowning of two persons in the Sioux river, near Riverside park, Sunday afternoon. The dead are: Carl K. Carrick, aged 21; Joseph Berries, aged 25. James Hayes and Carl Anderson, who also were in the boat, swam ashore. Carrick and Berries were unable to swim and no one was near to give them aid. The overturning of the boat was caused by its striking a piece of piling.

Move Lady Curzon's Body.

London, July 23.—The body of Lady Curzon was removed Sunday to Keston for burial, with the simplicity which her relatives desire, to mark the obsequies. When the coffin was borne from Carlton house terrace and placed in the hearse the blinds in the neighboring residences were drawn and the spectators uncovered.

Linemen Abandon Strike.

Atlanta, Ga., July 23.—The strike of the linemen of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, which was declared by the electrical workers' union on April 16, was officially called off by the officials of the union Sunday.

Ask Republicans for Funds.

New York, July 23.—Representative James S. Sherman and his associates on the Republican national congressional committee have decided to appeal to Republicans to contribute one dollar each to its campaign fund.

Texas Primary Elections.

Houston, Tex., July 23.—At the Democratic primary elections to be held Saturday, July 28, nominees for governor and congressmen in the Sixteenth congressional districts will be elected.

Greeks Murder Bulgarians.

Salonica, July 23.—At a farm at Malavista, near Karaferia, July 20, a Greek band captured and murdered eight Bulgarians including the proprietor of the farm.

PERILS IN UPPER AIR

Levee Tells Why They Will Not Discourage Ballooning.

SERVE TO ADD ZEST TO THE SPORT

French Aeronaut Says Americans Like Danger, but He Believes Popular Hostility the Chief Obstacle to Aerostatics in United States—Pathetic Portrait of Paul Nœgvet's Tragical Death.

"The dangers that go with ballooning are not what will injure it as a sport in America," said Charles Levee, the young French aeronaut the other day in commenting on the tragic end of the late Paul Nœgvet, the young sculptor in the marshes of Long Island, says the New York Globe. "Danger is what gives zest to aerostatics, and Americans like danger. A sport which provides opportunities for a show of nerve, for quick thinking and quicker action, for coolness in tight places, is bound to appeal to Americans."

"The thing that may kill ballooning in America, however, is the unreasonable prejudice which the people seem to have against the sport in general and balloonists in particular. I have run against this very unjust hostility almost from the day I set foot in this country."

"The people at the railway station, the farmers in the country, almost everybody it seems, look upon an aeronaut with suspicion. The railway people handle his balloon as if the thing most desired of accomplishment was its destruction. They pull it this way and that, drag it across tracks, kick it into a baggage car, throw trunks on top of it and act generally as if they had been set to the particular task of tearing the thing into ribbons."

"When you come down with the balloon, the people are waiting for you—not to congratulate you on having done something daring and unusual, but to mob you. The other day, when Count de la Vaulx, Dr. Thomas and myself came to earth on Long Island, I thought for a time that all three of us would be lynched and the balloon itself torn to pieces."

"It seems absolutely incredible, but these people actually resented not being permitted to carry away with them a piece of the balloon as a souvenir. They kicked it, spat on it, and when I tried to save it from destruction they cursed me and pushed me to one side. One man actually struck me. A stranger who interfered to save us from mob violence was kicked and beaten until he had to run for his life. Dr. Thomas pulled out an American flag and appealed to them on patriotic grounds, but he might as well have been whistling."

"Those who are not actually hostile are indifferent. The aeronaut who is going to indulge his love for ballooning in America must not expect any encouragement from the people at large. In France wherever a balloonist comes to earth he confers a distinction upon that man on whose ground he alights. He is taken in, housed, feasted and made much of. Here he is an interloper and the dogs are turned loose on him."

"Why, after my West Point ascension I came down on the estate of a gentleman farmer in Kingston. This man is probably worth 1,000,000 francs. Well, when he drove me to the station he charged me $3. It's not the $3 I mind; it's the idea back of it."

A strange and pathetic feature of Paul Nœgvet's death was that the young sculptor's body when found on Cott's Island was crouched in the very attitude of his favorite work, "The Little Man Weeping Into the Ground," now in his studio, says the New York World.

When Nœgvet was starting some years ago, shortly after his arrival in New York, he fell into many wild and mournful moods. In one of these he mourned out of plaster a strange but beautiful and touching figure of a naked man, prostrate, face downward, over a small pile of sand, weeping in despair.

The hair was blown down over the face, which was partly buried in the sand. The shoulders were drawn up, the arms bent, the muscles knotted, every part of the crouched figure betokening grief and desperation.

To this odd conception of his brooding fancy he gave the name, "The Little Man Weeping Into the Ground." He liked to show it to his friends, saying it was the truthful expression of how he felt when he was alone and near to death with hunger and despair in New York, then so cruel and strange to him.

A Million Trees For Western Kansas. Approximately 1,000,000 young trees will be distributed to the people living on the prairies of western Kansas free of charge this year, says the Topeka Capital. H. S. Beaubien, state forestry commissioner, who was in Topeka from Dodge City recently, says he is afraid that even this number will not be sufficient to supply the demand. The forestry stations at Dodge City and Ogallah have the young trees almost ready for shipment and will begin sending them out to those who have made application within a few days.

The Difference.

It is just as easy to fall in love with a rich girl as it is to fall in love with a poor one, but it is generally easier to marry the poor one.

among Anglo-Saxon people. The wheels of commerce and the working hours of business do cease to a very large extent, the vast majority of wage-earners do cease their toll on one day in the week, and that by common consent to the divine law which promulgates the principles involved.

But two questions would seem here to present themselves: the first, what are we going to say to the people who are expected to work seven days in the week; and secondly, to what extent shall Christian people demand a due recognition of the laws of God in the midst from those who would seem to disregard them?

With regard to the first question it would seem to be that the law of vicarious sacrifice must explain the necessity of anyone at all doing any secular labor on the Lord's day, for unless a whole nation became willing to stop commerce for 24 hours each week there is no possible way of having all necessary labor cease. And in the second question it would seem to be answered thus: To the extent that desecrations, secularization, non-recognition of God's law of rest, recreation worship.

The Lord's Day is a day of rest, recreation and worship. A day of rest, not of laziness, for body and mind guided by reason, instead of by inclination; a rest for body and mind by doing other things than the ones followed during the week; a recreation, a remaking of the fatigued body, mind and soul, by allowing them a chance to engage in higher pursuits, of which worship is the highest form. By keeping these three elements in constant sight, by weaving each and all of them into every Lord's day, we should find no place for unholy, desecrating habits and activities, for all will have been led captive to the will of God and the doing of His service by us and all others who look to Him as our Guide, our Lord and Master.

Ancient Custom.

The drinking of healths in wine or liquor of other kinds originated in Britain at the time of the rule of the Danes, before Alfred the Great finally succeeded in driving them from the land. Owing to the assassination of Englishmen by the Danes, it became a custom to enter into compacts for the mutual preservation of health and security. These compacts were usually pledged in wine, and hence the custom of drinking healths.

Worse Things Than Poverty.

Poverty is not the worst thing that can happen to us. Unmixed business prosperity is often narrowing and brutal, and as when men begin to clip the wings of fowls when they fly too high, even so does God by the ministry of misfortune teach us that we must not pass our bounds and glory too much in worldly things.—Exchange.

Judge Harlan's Retort.

Justice Harlan, of the supreme court, despite his length of service on the bench, still preserves that elasticity of spirit and love of a joke that have distinguished him through his career.

On circuit last year the justice created considerable merriment in a western court. A learned counsel was arguing the question as to what circumstances constituted an "accident," and was offering instances of what he considered would properly come within that term and what would not, on the other hand. "Suppose, you honor," said he, "some one were to hit me in the eye, making it black in consequence. The fact of its becoming black could not be called an accident."

"Perhaps not," suggested Harlan, with a chuckle, "but you would doubtless explain it on that ground."—Harper's Weekly.

Setting a Title.

A cynical man of the world was engaged in a euphuistic conversation with a former army chaplain, when they were joined by a rather nervous looking individual. The former chaplain introduced the nervous man to the cynical person in this manner:

"Mr. Smith, allow me to present to you Captain Blank."

As the captain proffered his good right hand to the man of the world the latter drawled out:

"A-b, C-a-p-t-a-i-n Blank, eh? Salvation Army, canal boat or military?"—Washington Star.

THE QUEST OF THE GOLDEN GOOSE

In hunting for a business or occupation most people are really hunting for a goose that will lay golden eggs.

The commonest aspiration is to so construct and devise a business enterprise that it becomes almost automatic—so that when the play-fever touches the blood one may "let go," sit at one side, and watch for the daily golden egg with a certainty of its appearance.

Every business man has, in his store or enterprise or venture, a possible golden goose—a present golden gosling. It rests with himself alone whether he will raise the bird or not—whether it will arrive at golden-goosehood or perish from neglect or ignorance.

These birds require much attention, much care—and they must be fed, if you would have them grow to goosehood, and their natural diet is—advertising!

No golden goose was ever raised to a "working age" if the food was stinted, or denied, or adulterated or substituted.

The merchant who "knows things" is satisfied to invest silver in food for the gosling—because, after many days, the silver will return in golden eggs.

Such investment may require a little faith—but more common sense.

Is your business enterprise progressing toward Golden Goosehood?
